Assad was but a few moments in making up his mind as to the friend he would send for. Near the great bazaar of the merchants of Balsoi-a, he said is the shop of an old lamp-mender, named Mokanna. I would see him. If he cannot be found in his shop, let him be sent for throughout the city. Let the cadí of each quarter send forth a crier, for the old man may have moved. Think you he would do better than your old master, the Syndic asked Mesrour, candidly. For a moment Assad was puzzled, but his wits came to him quickly, and he promptly replied: Elkader is quick of temper, and unforgiving when loss falls upon him. Then how will he act for me who am thus to be made the instrument of his loss He will ome to me rather with enmity and hatred in his bosom, and I do not wish for that in my last moments. R You are right, my son; and I will at once order the man oi whom you speak to be sent in to you. One word more, cried our hero, as Mesrour was about departing. What of Marouf He dies. When With you. Here No. In the place of execution. Upon the river Yes. And am I to be executed thus as a common felon It must be so. Allah have mercy! groaned the..
