Quest Books, 1995. Hardcover. Book Condition: New. Dust Jacket Condition: New DJ. First Edition NL with 1. Quest Books 1995 First Edition NL with 1 New/New DJ ReviewWhile examining the expectations and actions of humanity regarding the end of this millennium and with respect to historical documentation from the end of the last, Grosso uncovers trends toward our future in the coming age. He examines the increasing number of reports of paranormal phenomena such as UFO sightings, incidents of channeling and ESP, the prevalence of "angel awareness" and the New Age mind set, and links them together in a pattern of destruction, transformation and a rebirth of Biblical proportions. Not all gloom and doom, but it certainly gives you something to think about. Grosso (philosophy and humanities, Jersey City State Coll.) is an elegant heir to Vico's realm of the philosophy of culture. Here he traces the history and analyzes the operative dynamism that fuels the diverse repackagings enjoyed by the "millennium myth," which assumes that the end of time is at hand and requires specific human preparation. From the biblical of Revelation, through the foundation of America as the New Jerusalem, and on to the Nazi work of Hitler and to New Age credos, Grosso carefully and clearly explicates both the whys and the wherefores informing the millennial mind. Because he writes with an evenhanded comprehension of both political history and human nature, his text will provide valuable insight and clarification for scholars and interested lay readers. Highly recommended. Francisca Goldsmith, Berkeley P.L., Cal. 1994. Large Heavy Item. No Exp.
