Excerpt: . . . look for these in the outcrops near to Port Dinorwic, which have far more bearing on the question So far as I can discover from his paper, he has left them unvisited. Nevertheless, in a matter where the evidence before one can only be imperfect, it is possible to get sometimes to a right conclusion by a wrong method, and sometimes to a wrong conclusion by a right method; and in this case I must frankly confess that, while repudiating Dr. Roberts arguments, I admit the substantial correctness of his conclusion as regards the Twt Hill conglomerate. I have, however, altered my views for reasons which are more satisfactory to my own mind than any which he has advanced. They are: (1) because from prolonged study of the microscopic structure of metamorphio rocks, I have become more doubtful of the possibility of two such beds as the granitoid rock and the conglomerate belonging to one series; and (2) because I have at last found felsite fragments in the conglomeratic series in the Carnarvon district. In September, 1880, Mr. Houghton conducted me to a pit (found by him subsequent to the date of our paper) which afforded the section diagrammatically represented below, about half a mile S. S. W. of Tan-y-maes. It is at a spot on the map about twotenths of an inch south of the first C in Cefn Cynryg, and there can be little doubt of its belonging to the same series as...
